

Table with 50 columns and 50 rows, containing numerical data for permanent impairments. The table is structured as a grid where each cell contains a number, often representing a percentage or a specific value. The numbers generally increase from left to right and top to bottom, with some cells containing multiple numbers separated by spaces. The table is labeled 'A' on the left and 'B' at the bottom.